New School Site In S.W. Torrance Offered District

An eight-acre site in Seaside Ranchos, Southwest Torrance, has been set aside for an elementary school site by Ben Haggott, realtor who is agent for the rapidly developing new residential area, Haggott informed the Torrance Herald yesterday.

The Walteria school already is overcrowded and inadequate, and it is the only facility in that territory available.

"It is realized that the new Board of Education will, immediately upon its constitution, consider this matter," Haggott said.

During the City Charter campaign last summer, members of the Charter Committee pointed out to Hollywood Riviera residents that a new school will be necessary and that their children will be permitted to attend Palos Verdes school until a new building is erected by the Torrance school district.

The offer of the site at Seaside Ranchos will simplify the establishment of the new school in that area, it was pointed out.

Walteria Sewer System Plans Asked By City

Torrance City Council Tuesday night adopted a resolution of intention to construct the Walteria sewer system after Gianni M. Jain, city engineer, had reported that property owners were overwhelmingly in favor of the system.

Jain declared that of 49,544 feet of frontage to be served by the sewers, 35,141 feet of 71.93 percent is owned by persons favoring the system.

Art Stagner attempted to introduce additional protests in the form of a petition which he said contained 150 names, but he was told he was too late. The protest meeting was held March 4. Stagner was informed he will have a chance to protest after plans and specifications are prepared for adoption.

Jain was authorized to hire additional engineers to prepare necessary data for the project. Plans for the South Torrance sewer project were delayed pending a more complete check of protests since 59.65 of the assessable frontage was found to be in protest. It was said that the district may include only that area which was not in protest of the system.

Council Again Turns Down Vets Deal As Illegal

Following a conference in which the City Council and representatives of the Torrance Area Veterans Service Corporation, burned the midnight oil Tuesday, the Council again ruled that it cannot legally sponsor the conversion of barracks buildings at Lomita Flight strip into veterans homes.

J. G. Caldwell, spokesman, was told that it would involve illegal expenditure of public funds and violation of housing laws to proceed with the venture. The city had been asked to underwrite ten cents on each dollar spent on the conversion, with the state financing the balance. The fund would be returned to the city by the corporation, Caldwell said.

ALBERT ISEN ATTORNEY AT LAW 1807 CABRILLO AVENUE TORRANCE, CALIFORNIA March 13, 1947 To the Voters of Torrance: I am a candidate for the Board of Education because I believe that my professional, business and teaching experience would be of use to the new Torrance City School District. As a resident of Torrance since 1912 and a graduate of Torrance Elementary School (1920) and Torrance High School (1924), I am aware of our requirements and problems, and if elected will give my best efforts towards making the Torrance schools the best in California. Other than this, I have no "platform," no "elate" and no "committee," feeling as I do that no such organized political efforts are necessary, having lived here most of my life and being known to most of you either personally or by reputation. Sincerely yours, Albert Isen
